

Personal Representation

Service. Commitment. Trust. What could be more important where your personal affairs are concerned? At Pryor Cashman, we understand that the most crucial matters we handle are the ones that impact our clients' families, homes, personal well-being and financial security. When a client seeks our help in buying a home, preparing a will, making estate plans, navigating through a divorce, negotiating an employment agreement or defending against a criminal charge, we devote the same measure of attention as we do to structuring a multimillion dollar corporate transaction or litigating a complex commercial case.

When you come to Pryor Cashman with a personal matter, you will be paired with an experienced attorney, whose mission will be to manage your case with maximum efficiency, respond promptly to all your concerns and, most importantly of all, earn your trust.

Our Personal and Wealth Planning attorneys will devote themselves to bettering your families' future and maximizing your wealth.

When family tragedy strikes, the lawyers in our Trusts and Estates Group will step in to help with probate matters and tax management.

Our Real Estate Group includes numerous attorneys dedicated to simplifying the process of buying or selling a house, condo or co-op.

Should you need help with a personal employment issue – such as negotiating the terms of a promotion or challenging a workplace wrong – our Labor and Employment Group stands ready to serve you.

If you find yourself facing a divorce, our family law attorneys will guide you through that process with grace and dignity.

And if you should ever be threatened with a criminal prosecution, our criminal defense attorneys will do everything in their power to shield you from harm.

At Pryor Cashman we are justifiably proud of our commitment to serving not just businesses but individuals and their families. The many components of our Personal Representation practice are detailed below. We trust you will find what you're looking for.
