Steven M. Rabinowitz joined Pryor Cashman in 1987, after serving as an Assistant District Attorney in Manhattan and, subsequently, as general counsel to one of the largest real estate development companies in New York. During his 22 years with the firm, he has developed a broad-based practice, applying his litigation, negotiation and conflict resolution skills to everything from complex business disputes and labor/management conflicts, to criminal defense and divorce.

As a family lawyer, Steven enjoys a reputation for bringing civility and dignity to an often stressful process. Yet he is also known for his abilities as a trial attorney – first honed during over thirty trials as a prosecutor – that he brings to bear in matrimonial, criminal defense and business matters.

A highly-trained mediator as well, Steven Rabinowitz mediates both business and interpersonal conflicts, helping companies and individuals resolve their disputes without litigation.
