

Technology: Representative Matters

- Representation of major international publisher in connection with its acquisition of large proprietary databases and related assets
- Representation of privately held “file-sharing” e-commerce business in connection with sale of its assets
- Representation of public telecommunications company in connection with its sponsorship of research programs at academic institutions and the acquisition of rights in the technology and intellectual property resulting from such research
- Representation of large Japanese DRAM chip manufacturer in negotiating and documenting agreement to develop, manufacture and supply next-generation DRAM chip requirements for prominent U.S. telecommunications company
- Representation of public company in negotiating and implementing joint development and marketing agreement for “ASP”-based software application useful for online tax calculation and reporting
- Representation of Korean cell phone manufacturer in negotiating agreements for distribution of its products in U.S.