Pryor Cashman IT Director Shari Jackowitz Quoted In Of Counsel Magazine

Shari Jackowitz, Pryor Cashman's Director of Information Technology, was featured in an article about software in the May 2007 issue of Of Counsel - The Legal Practice and Management Report, a Wolters Kluwer publication.

The article, entitled "Are You Losing Clients Because Your Software's Too Old? ... Don't Get Caught with a 1.0 in a 5.0 World," discusses the challenges of keeping up to date with the most current technology. After noting that some firms rely on their IT people to find the best products, the article quotes Jackowitz: "I do the research and also listen to the business needs based on what I hear from the partners."

As set forth in the article, Jackowitz then makes recommendations based on Pryor Cashman's needs and the cost. She also identifies alternative products, but provides her own recommendation of what she considers the best choice to be.
