Pryor Cashman's Robert Ray Makes Presentation On When Bad Things Happen To Good Companies And Banks

In the new legal and investigatory landscape wrought by post-Enron legislative and regulatory responses typified by the Sarbanes-Oxley Act, it has become increasingly necessary for good corporate citizens to know how to respond -- in a programmatic yet practical way -- when bad things inevitably happen to good companies and banks. Pryor Cashman partner Robert W. Ray has created an instructive Power Point presentation on the topic which can be viewed by clicking here.
