

Attorneys

Partner

- Andrew S. Langsam

Partner Andrew Langsam Authors Legal Update About U.S. Supreme Court Decision Regarding Patentability Of Business Methods

On June 28, 2010, the U.S. Supreme Court issued its much anticipated Bilski v. Kappos decision concerning the patentability of inventions claimed in U.S. patent applications directed to business methods. The Supreme Court held that business method patents are not automatically excluded from potential patent protection and that each case will be determined on its merits.

Pryor Cashman Partner Andrew Langsam, Chair of Pryor Cashman's Patent Group, has written an informative Legal Update about the decision entitled Business Method Patents – What Does Bilski Stand For? To read the update, please click here.